

A little bit of Bollington

Nestled within the foothills of the Cheshire Peak District, Bollington is surrounded by glorious countryside, the Maccelsfield canal and walks.

Until the 17th Century, most Bollingtonians spent their working lives sheep farming. The onset of the Industrial Revolution changed the face of the town forever when it became a thriving cotton mill town bringing hundreds of families to the area. Stone quarrying and coal mining were also established.

Today a landscape of quaint stone cottages, majestic mills and their chimneys prevail, providing a backdrop for some wonderful walks.

How to find Bollington

The original business to business agency was founded in 1973 in Bollington and we have returned to our first home.

Working in an agency environment is busy, but the peaceful canal next door and rolling hills aplenty make it a special place to work.

At Stein IAS we take great advantage of this privilege and consider Bollington a good reason for our continued successes.

If you'd like to see how a global agency with a community spirit can help your business reach its potential, then we would love to hear from you.
